Digital EUHA Spring Conference 2025: nine weeks on demand

(Münster, 6 March 2025) For nine weeks from 28 March to 31 May 2025, 15 exciting expert presentations will be available at any time. In addition to the latest specialist topics, there will also be interesting information from the field of marketing and two special topics that are relevant to everyone. It's worth being there!

A very important and currently very popular topic is dealing with stress and pressure. Stephanie Fehr-Hoberg has given numerous workshops and coaching sessions on stress management in recent years. Amongst other things, she sheds light on thought patterns that exacerbate and promote stress and presents strategies for coping with stress.

Hannah Wolf will also be presenting a topic that affects everyone: the world of work is changing - a shortage of skilled workers, digitalisation and new expectations of the workplace are presenting teams with challenges. But how can we actively contribute to a positive working atmosphere? How do we manage to work together in a respectful and solution-orientated way despite different perspectives and generations? To this end, ideas will be presented on how to tackle challenges constructively and promote strong cooperation within the company.

Other presentations from the 'Research & Science' section will focus on insitu measurement, acceptable noise levels, SNR measurement and tinnitus management. From the 'Practice' area, there will be news on the subject of varnish, earmoulds and impression material. It also deals with hearing effort, streaming and the acceptance of initial fittings. Marketing topics will focus on the target group of the future and a central platform for product data will be presented.
