

Ulrich Gsenger

Dementia counselling, Diakoniewerk Salzburg

Dealing with hearing-impaired people with dementia as customers in hearing aid practices

This presentation focuses on recognising people with dementia as customers and understanding the disease and its symptoms so that it can be dealt with appropriately.

In particular, it addresses the loss of cognitive abilities and language skills and ways of counteracting these deficits.

Legal aspects are also addressed and the situation for relatives and carers is explained.