Hearing acoustics - more than selling

Hearing aids are helpful for all many people with hearing loss.

The job of hearing aid acousticians is much more than selling. They support to live much easier for people with hearing loss and their families. Furthermore acousticians are responsible for medical prevention and rehabilitation and take care of the health of people.

Future Skills are much more than selling competence.

The new Generation needs emotional and digital competence und therefore the human and social skills have to be enlarged and fully developed based on a powerful message for the new generation
